

This project is a website homepage I designed for a local concrete company. It highlights my ability to create clean, functional layouts and apply graphic design principles in a real-world project. The site was built using Flutter.

Below is a video showcasing the team in action, helping viewers connect with the people behind the concrete work.